

Invitation for submission

APA DEWAP (“ADEWAP”) owns and operates the Port Hedland transmission network which connects the Port Hedland Power Station to the North West Interconnected System (“NWIS”). In November 2023, APA Group acquired ADEWAP.

Regulation of APA Group’s Port Hedland transmission network commenced on 1 July 2021. This regulation is incorporated under the light-handed third-party network access regime of the Pilbara Networks Access Code (“PNAC”).

ADEWAP is required to undertake the ‘standard consultation process’ (as set out in Appendix 1 of the PNAC) before publishing:

- any update, amendment or replacement to information previously published under section 36 of the PNAC, and
- an update to the ‘services and pricing policy’ which is required before the start of each new pricing period.

ADEWAP’s access and pricing documents for the first pricing period prepared by the previous owner are effective until 30 June 2024. We have updated the access and pricing documents for the second pricing period for public consultation - from 1 July 2024 to 30 June 2027.

ADEWAP invites submissions on the draft access and pricing documents for APA Port Hedland transmission network (“APA Network”) as required by the PNAC.

Matters for consultation

Given the change in ownership, we have undertaken a review of the 2021 ADEWAP documents and rebranded and updated contact information as appropriate. These documents have been made available as part of the consultation process.

With the second pricing period commencing on 1 July 2024, and in accordance with the standard consultation procedures, stakeholders are invited to make submissions on the following documents:
